Wigwam

1942

We at Warren are proud of that flag. Every day it waves over our school symbolizing the freedom of activity which we enjoy. Our activities at Warren are varied; they include, in addition to our regular school work, educational projects, social contacts, and leisure time interests. We have tried to present a typical cross section of school life picturing each senior in some characteristic activity or in some of his more frivolous moments.

The four members of the Senior Council shown here raising the flag are David Middleton, David Price, Frieda Schmalfeldt, and Evalyn Masterson.

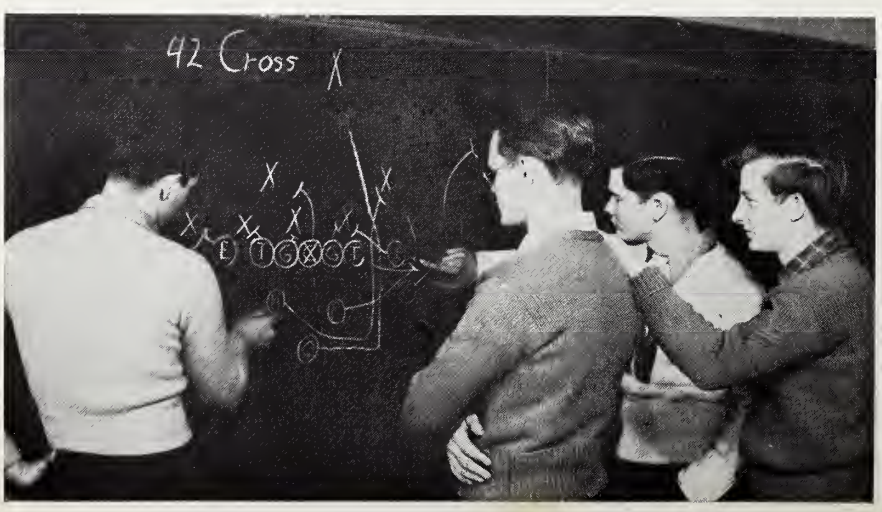
THEY PLAY BALL

You can't blame them for discussing a record like that. Seventeen wins and six losses is good in any language. We're proud of those boys and the others on the team too. Imagine what fun Millard (Applegate, you know) and Junior (Perkins) will have talking about it ten years from now.

STUDENT MANAGERS

And what's any ball team without athletic managers? Well, they weren't without so we won't have to answer that. The boys who carried the towels, managed to keep track of equipment, and soothed the coaches when the score was not all it should have been are none other than Al Mathias and "Wahoo" Johnson.



IT'S FOOTBALL

"Six lessons from Madam . . ." whoever it was who taught you dancing won't be necessary if you want to learn to play football; just watch our able maestro at the blackboard and you will soon see all the tricks. Know them? Why sure! It's Russell Simpson, Earl Overbeck, Dick Fulk, and Bill Lewis.

EDITORS ARE WE

Lois Armstrong and Jane Featherstone have had a busy year. It's quite a long step between an actual happening and the appearance of the event in print. They know. They'll even tell you if you'll listen. It's not been just this publication but the Owl too.

VIOLIN TRIO

If you saw the senior production, and who didn't, you'll remember these girls. They played "Lazy River" to a very pleased audience. We do wish you could have seen this picture in color though for it was really pretty. The girls you recognized are Doris Deerberg, Helen Jennings and Alice Springer.

THEY'RE FROM THE BAND

"Rah! Rah! For Warren" and Rah! Rah! for these seniors when you stop to recall all the honors the band has won. First division rating in the state for both band and orchestra is really tops. The people here are Bill Schenck, tenor sax; Ivan Roney, trombone; Dale Kessler, French horn; Dick Singleton, alto sax, and Veva Peet, snare drums.

ORATORY

SAVINGS CLUB

STAGE WORKERS

If that's the way he looked when debating then Charlie must have won with tough arguments instead of tough looks, for did you ever see a more peaceful expression on anybody's face? Kemp and Jesse Linder enjoy good arguments; this one just didn't come off as we'd planned.

The Savings Club has given students a stimulus for patriotic savings. These boys have spent much of their time aiding the success of this activity. Judging by Bob Walker's facial expression they must have lost a dime; Eugene Roy and George Moyer seem calm enough. Alan Caudell, John Washmuth, Margaret Hudson, and June Pendley, members of the speech class, helped set up the stage for minstrels, operas, plays and productions, pageants and debates.

TWIRLING

Joan Gary twirls her baton with ease as Marie Dill and Gerald Howard watch with somewhat puzzled expressions.

WARRENETTES

Ruth Mowry, Mary Ellen Plymate, and Shirley Vansickle discuss Warrenette Club activities. These officers and the two hundred fifty club members sponsored after-school parties, the Mother's Valentine Tea and the Spring Party.

SAFETY WORKERS

Paul Smith, safety squad lieutenant, David Kerkhoff, and Don Pressel, bus captains, carefully examine tires to be sure they are safe for transporting school children.

HONOR SOCIETY

Myron Dill, Eileen Pollard, and Bill Gale, Honor Society members, discuss plans for the society's activities. One of the annual projects of this society is the post-school survey. This questionnaire is intended to gather information that will be helpful in curriculum planning. Thirteen members of the senior class were members of the Honor Society.

JUST RELAXING

Thought maybe we could make you believe they were practicing for a performance, but decided to tell the truth; it is just for fun. Estel Fivecoat, who is always willing to help by playing the piano, is doing just that in this picture while Dorothy Brown sings and Tom Keyt looks on. They are all three members of the Senior Chorus.

MAIN OFFICE

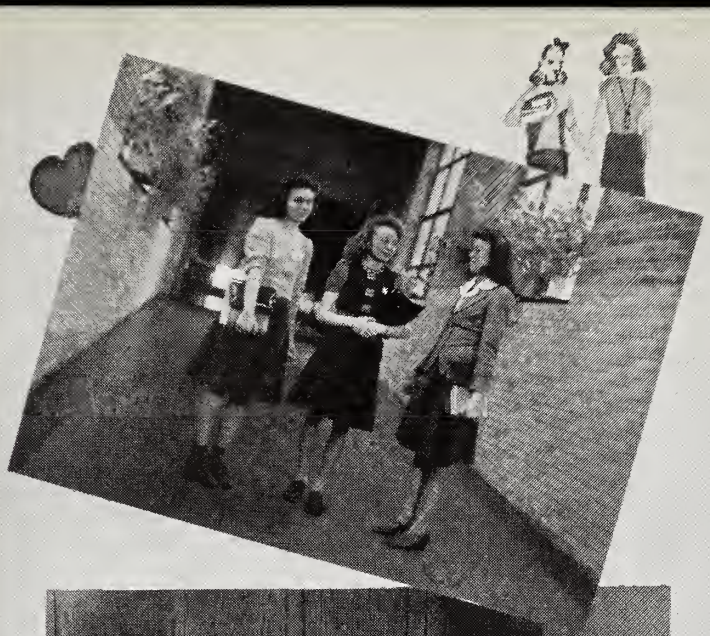
You'll remember this scene many years from now; yes, it is the school office. Mildred Falconbury, Bertha Dickinson, Jessie Atkinson, and Mary Sue Smith were among the students who helped keep things in the general office running efficiently.

IT'S JUST A DOLL

Barbara Shaw, Harriet Elliott and Martha Walker, who are really jitterbugs at heart, take time out to give "Baby Sandy" a bath in child care class. The baby doll may be tired of being scrubbed but it's rather attractive scrubbing, don't you think?

GIRL FRIENDS

Muriel Somers, Judy Belle Harper, and Bessie Clark get up to date on such matters as "Was the test hard?", "Where did you go last night?" to say nothing of "May I borrow your blue skirt to wear to the skating party?", and "You'll never believe it but . . ."



NO SPEED LIMIT

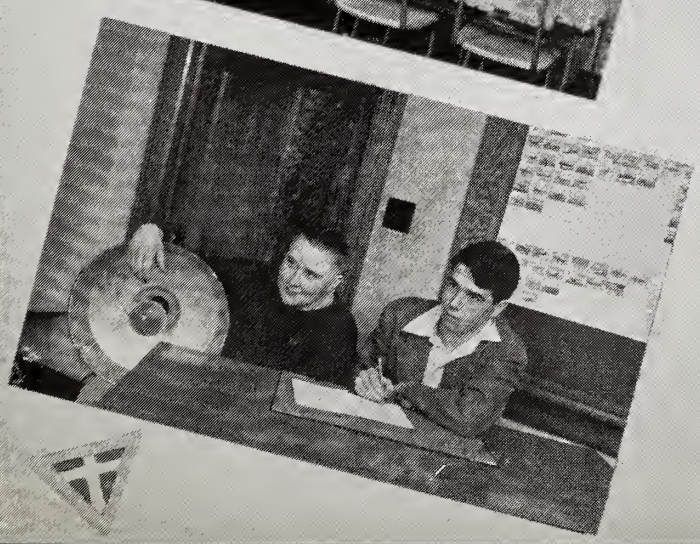
Irene Hougland, Janie Hubble, and Virginia Lucas prepare for a timed typing test, but there is no speed limit and these girls may hit ninety some day. Something comes to mind about "Kitten On The Keys" but hate to mention it because you might not recall the acrobatic musical selection which was popular back when.

PREPARING LUNCH

Laurel Lee Polk, Betty Garriott, and Ruth Smith plan to serve a luncheon in the school's modernistic foods laboratory. That's Laurel Lee getting ice cubes ready while Betty and Ruth finish setting the table.

HI-Y BOYS

Bruce Stroud, still holding the photographer's light, had to take time out to transact a little Hi-Y Club business with Fred Resener. Bruce was treasurer, and Fred, corresponding secretary of the club. Bruce looks well despite his financial worries.



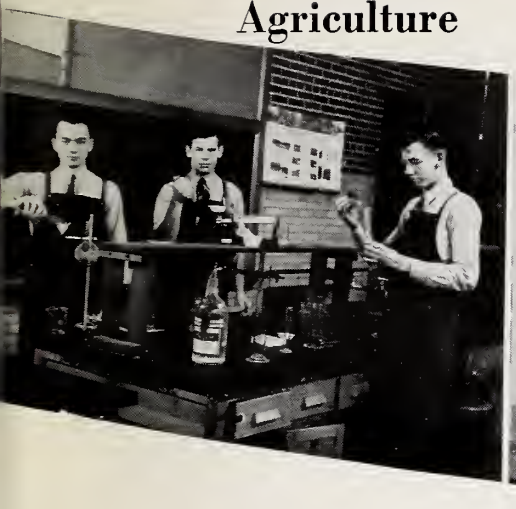
Orchestra's do not have any corner on this "rippling rhythm" for we have some of it right here at Warren. We asked Fred Johnson to show us how he gets a work out on the rowing machine. From the looks of those muscles it is well he takes care of his excess energy there. Bob Applegate? He was in the picture when it was taken.

Doris Phillips, Willard Ashe, and Betty Jane West are making use of library facilities to find materials for their English themes. Bibliographics, footnotes, and outlines are no snap even if you forget about the 1000 word composition.

Joe Rejko, Bill Roberts and Wilfred Bevis worked industriously for the duration—of the picture, no guarantees given for the past or future. However we have heard of some well-built equipment they've helped make.

Romilda Schreiber, Mary Wonnell and Don Frakes enjoyed every minute of art class and always insist that it was the shortest period of the day.

Agriculture



Dick Lindstaedt, Millard Harmon and Bob VanBuren are conducting an experiment in agriculture chemistry class. It looks most serious and masculine, but these boys know more than agriculture chemistry for they were among those boys who exchanged classes with the home economics girls and learned something of foods and nutrition too. They should know, not only what makes things grow, but what to do with the vegetables and other products after they have been successfully cultivated.

Attendance Office

Dorothy Reynolds and Ruth Whitson are working on records in the school attendance office. The office is organized on a cooperative basis with about seventeen student assistants. These students have a variety of duties including filing, typing, recording, operating duplicating machines, collecting and delivering daily and weekly attendance forms, and answering the office telephone.

Sewing

Ruth Weise does machine stitching while Eleanor Bode fits a dress to the model in advanced clothing class. Sewing students have good equipment and make a variety of garments in the clothing laboratory. They learn to make suits and dresses, and to alter and select ready-made garments.

ECONOMICS

Economics is one subject which all seniors are required to take. It helps to give them (us) a background of current economic problems and aids in making them (us) more intelligent newspaper readers. We did charts, chapters, and papers. Mary Ruth Hanes, Jean Witte, and Anna Sosbey are shown inspecting a sample graph which appeared on the blackboard.

PRINTING

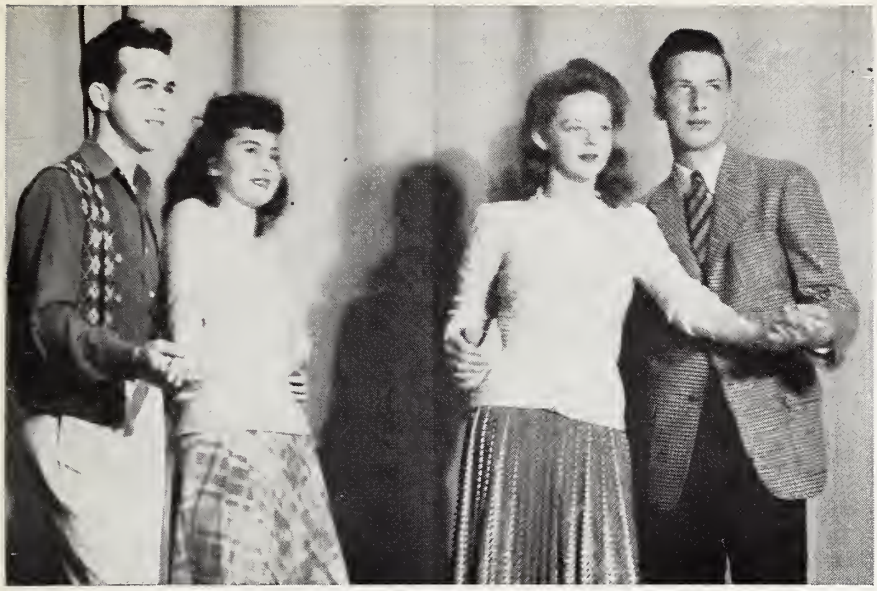
Charles Chasteen, Aaron Mattox, and Ray Bechold are busily pondering over problems in print shop. We don't know what it is all about but Ray certainly has a scowl on his face, must be something serious.

LIBRARY

Mary Jane Weishaar and Kathleen Spall patiently await the ringing of the bell. But don't let their placid expressions fool you; they have just agreed it would be more fun to let the bell awaken Nettie Mae Hobart from her slumbers than to awaken her themselves. If a girl has her lessons finished, can't she relax once in a while? . . . (Attention Underclassmen: This activity does not meet with faculty approval.)

CHEMISTRY

Unless yon can supply a new set of adjectives we cannot tell you about this next picture. We do not understand it but in chemistry lab they can make more atrocious odors and figure out bigger names to call them than any place we've seen yet. What Martha Demaree, John Bowman and Mary Ann Piel are really doing is something called "qualitative analysis of metalic compounds with H_2S to get precipitates of metalic sulfides."



J-I-T-T-E-R-B-U-G-S

Someone, we can not remember who, once suggested that the class of '42 be divided into thirds. One-third was for those with the jitters; the second, for those who were buggy; and the remaining third, for those who were both jittery and buggy. Upon trying to make the division it was discovered that all the seniors belonged in the latter group and so the idea was abandoned. The jittery-buggy jitterbugs shown in this picture are Don Baker, Doris Smith, Gloria Wein, and Gene Bego. Betty Schildmeier and Ruth Wilson pictured below, proved that we all have our more serious moments. Now don't say eating isn't serious business! Junior Weishaar and Bill Sharper are taking off for an afternoon of relaxation, bowling is good exercise after a hard day at school.

LUNCH TIME

BOWLING

A BALANCED BUDGET

All errors do not occur on the baseball field according to Juanita Lawyer, for she ran into a little difficulty while working on her bookkeeping. The balanced work sheet is due to the helpful counseling of John Olsen.

KEEPING FIT

Why Bettie Higgens, don't look so scared, Esther Rawlings and Betty Patterson will protect you if "Josephine" moves. After all, you don't have to hold hands.

HIGH PRESSURE

Mildred Thomas tried desperately to remember the fundamentals of salesmanship but Betty Alice Clark scratched her head and looked skeptical and LeElla Keller, too, appears to be not quite convinced.

DRAFTING

This is "off the record" but—the office girls usually drew straws to decide who should run errands to the drafting class. Want to know why? Drafting is one of those classes whose enrollment is exclusively masculine. Harold Heiny, Francis Meek, and Clifford Tombs are inspecting a drawing. They confess they found drafting interesting and practical.

THIS IS WHERE WE GATHER

One of the most popular corners in Warren Central is the hallway in front of the Warren Central school store. That is where everyone meets everyone else. We've laughed and chatted there as we've spent our money for tablets, pencils and other necessary school supplies. Seniors shown transacting business there are Weber Rector, Don Miller, Edith Jenkins, Al Cowan, Gordon Spilker, Charles Petty, and Emma Ruth Wigle.

CLOSE OF THE DAY

Esther Jean Lewis, Margaret Wulf and Marian De Goyler probably have all sorts of plans made for summer; you can see them on page seventeen getting ready to drive away.

Jack Curry and his self-invited guest watch Bill Suddarth and Bob Applegate lower the flag to denote the end of a school day, and school year. This is the last page of '42 senior life.
